Forecast for Tuesday 19 Apr 2022

Weather: Largely dry with clear spells during the early hours but some mist and low cloud forming around the summits by dawn. Some sunshine is likely to begin the day, but becoming generally cloudy with a chance of showers. Heavier showers are possible during the afternoon and evening with a small threat of the odd one containing hail and a rumble of thunder. There is however likely to be some drier periods at times, perhaps with the odd brighter interlude. Feeling colder than recently, especially on the summits.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 60%.

Low cloud and visibility: Temporary periods of cloud above 600m during the morning. Possibly more extensive cloud above 700-800m at times during the afternoon. Very poor visibility in cloud with briefly moderate visibility during showers, even at lower levels. Otherwise, very good visibility with excellent air clarity.

Meteorologist's View

Colder than of late and feeling like it's below freezing on the highest summits. It's worth taking warm and waterproof clothing if you're planning on spending the day in the mountains, especially if heading to the summits.
